“We’re really excited to have Déja with us to navigate this new initiative,” said Caitlin Sussman, a social worker at Milan Puskar Health Right and Fleury’s placement adviser. “The library director and I were looking for a special person, and she has absolutely lived up to that standard. She makes me a proud social work teacher.”

The clinical placement with the Morgantown Public Library and Health Right is new for spring 2020. The School of Social Work sought an undergraduate student who could conduct a needs assessment and offer a social work presence in the library.

A Note from the Librarian's Desk

By: Stacy Brody, MI Student; John Arthur, Director of the Metuchen Public Library; Kaitlin Montague, Librarian at Monmouth County Libraries

This article focuses on partnerships between libraries and social workers. In many ways, we share the same missions, and we often the same clientele. Because the public library is viewed as a trusted source for information and because the public library is often used as a day shelter, it is a natural place for people to seek the expertise of a social worker.

Our professions are not glamorous. As librarians and social workers, we rarely see our names in lights. Our navchecks could use a bit of nadding.

provide skills, tools, and information to empower individuals to thrive in the world outside.

Our shared commitment to service and the complementary ways in which we connect individuals to resources pave the way for partnerships between professions. As librarians, we welcome all people into our libraries. However, there are some patrons whose needs go beyond the services we deliver at our reference desks. We understand the importance of a good referral, directing patrons to the appropriate source, Somerset County reached out to the Rutgers School of Social Work to initiate the collaboration. Interns earn credits for the 22-30 hours in which they work at the libraries.

Somerville Library Rutgers MSW intern, Josue Hidalgo, has been interning with the system since he was placed with the library in November 2017. Already, he has helped patrons apply for housing, created immigration clinics, offered financial literacy training, and earned the trust of patrons in need of help.

WHAT IS THE CRC?

The Anchorage Public Library Community Resource Coordinator (CRC) is a grant-funded pilot project that provides outreach, information and assistance services for all patrons at the Loussac and Mountain View libraries, especially those experiencing vulnerabilities. A collaboration between the Anchorage Health Department and the Anchorage Public Library, the project began in September 2018 and will run through December 2020.

The CRC connects library patrons with available community resources through direct outreach and innovative programs, community events, and collaborations with community partners. The CRC is supported by the UAA School of Social Work and coordinates with the Municipality of Anchorage Mobile Intervention Team (MIT) and the Anchorage Coalition to End Homelessness. The CRC also works with Library staff and security to identify and engage with vulnerable library patrons.

#Womenshistorymonth is a great time to meet the women of the Library. Artemis Golzar is a social work intern from Loyola's School of Social Work. She's inspired by our teen space the Loft. "It's a special place for teens to be both safe and independent."
