A close-up, slightly blurred photograph of a person's hands playing a board game. The person is wearing a plaid shirt and is holding a small card. On the table, there are several wooden game pieces: a black pawn, a yellow house-shaped piece, a purple cone-shaped piece, and another yellow house-shaped piece. There are also some cards and a small green rectangular object on the table. The background is out of focus, showing more of the game setup and the person's hands.

I have no idea how to do that

Tim, Some Who Call Me 07/20/2020

tap the hamburger menu in the upper-left of the app on on your phone a menu pops out.

make sure the red dice are select in the left column

then tap on the Game table 1 in the center column

Code of Conduct

First question: Do you agree to a gaming space that is also a safe space? Where a person or category of people can feel confident that they will not be exposed to discrimination, criticism, harassment, or any other emotional or physical harm.

Second question: Do you agree to honor and use an individual's pronouns?

Questions?

Online Board Game Platforms

Steam

The platform is free.

Most games are NOT.

All players need to acquire the same game in order to play.

So if a paid game, everyone needs to pay.

Difficult to moderate.

Great Games! Great Interface! It's so beautiful...

Tabletop Simulator

Cost about $20 on Steam

Amazing selection of games!
Some free some not.

SO. MANY. GAMES.

It SIMULATES the gaming table. You pick stuff up and move it around.

There is a huge learning curve
with the functionality.

Tabletopia

Also a simulator.

It runs a virtual table with all the pieces and ability to move them.

Learning curve.

It's fine. Really. Just f

One time I dropped pawn and it took m
hour to pick it back again.

Orléans

The Gallerist

Railways of the World

The Gallerist

Yucata.de and Boitejeux.net

Game selection ok.

Interface is antiquated.

Learning curve low.

Free.

Some great easy to teach games like Alhambra and Dixit.

My favorite game Concordia is also there.
