The Format That Is Right for You

To save you time, let's first determine which of the three formats is best for you. Ultimately, the format and style you choose should best showcase your education, skills, and experience.

Take a moment to answer the following questions.

	Yes	No
1. Are you a recent graduate with little or no real-world work experience?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
2. Do you have one or more large gaps in your employment history?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
3. Are you highly trained, but have little real-world work experience?	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
4. Do you have little paid work experience, but extensive unpaid volunteer work experience or unpaid internship experience?	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
5. Do you have non-work experience that helped you develop skills that will be useful in the workplace?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
6. Are you changing careers and hoping to work in a totally different industry?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
7. Do you know exactly what job you want and understand the exact job requirements of the position?	<input type="radio"/>	<input checked="" type="radio"/>
8. Are you willing to tailor your resume to showcase what you know the employer is looking for?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
9. Do you have the education and skills needed to be successful in a specific job, but lack the related work experience?	<input checked="" type="radio"/>	<input type="radio"/>
